Record RSS announce partnership with Halcrow

Innovative playground and sports equipment manufacturers Record RSS are pleased to announce a partnership with leading planning, design and management services company Halcrow. Halcrow will be working closely with Record RSS to enhance the play value of future schemes by incorporating natural play and responding to the context of each site through landscape design. The combined aim is to deliver play spaces that are exciting and challenging, with a sense of place.

Doug Belfield Sales Director for Record RSS commented: "This is an excellent partnership for Record RSS. We had been looking to work closely with an organization that not only had the skills and knowledge to add soft landscaping to our existing play space designs but a company that is dedicated and enthusiastic towards play. Paul Rabbits and his Halcrow team bring all of the above and a very important belief in sustainability within designs which matches our aspirations. The fact that Paul has in excess of 15 years local authority experience is an added bonus. As a business Record RSS with Halcrow can now offer an unparalleled service offering."

Paul Rabbits, landscape architect for Halcrow added: "We believe that huge value can be added to play projects by incorporating landscaping features, we are pleased that in Record RSS we have found a company that also has this opinion and shares our enthusiasm and passion for creating outstanding play schemes. We look forward to delivering exciting and innovative projects with Record RSS."

Halcrow specialises in the provision of planning, design and management services for infrastructure development worldwide. Founded in 1868, the company has developed into a leading consultancy in all of its core sectors – water, transportation, maritime and property. The company's 8,000 employees operate from a network of over 90 offices worldwide. Halcrow is owned and managed by its employees and staff shareholders, making it one of the largest independent firms of its kind. The company provides consultancy services to government departments, public sector authorities and utilities, industrial and commercial companies, international funding agencies and financial institutions.
